

Denios AG awards itelligence AG with follow-up contract itelligence needs only three months to introduce SAP Warehouse Management with radio frequency scanner integration

Frankfurt, March 18, 2004 - itelligence AG will introduce a complete SAP Warehouse Management System with radio frequency scanner integration at Denios AG in the space of only three months. Denios, which specializes in the design and fabrication of equipment for the compliant handling and storage of hazardous materials, is currently building a new logistics centre with a storage space in excess of 9,500 square meters in Löhne, North Rhine-Westphalia. Employing some 440 people, the fast-growing company generated sales of EUR 85 million in 2002. The project was launched in February 2004; when the Center opens on May 1, 2004, the warehouse and the inventory management system are expected to function without a glitch and process orders for the whole of Europe. Deliveries from Löhne will be initiated directly by the order-taking systems in the European branches.

The itelligence consultants will integrate the complete SAP Warehouse Management System into the existing SAP system. Warehouse and Shipping Department will use the SAP Radio Frequency Solution to send orders to employees' mobile acquisition devices and report material movements via barcode readers. itelligence is considered a specialist in logistics handling using the SAP Warehouse Management System. This is Denios AG's second contract with itelligence; 30 months ago, the IT consultancy successfully introduced SAP R/3 for some 140 users at Denios AG.

"We found the itelligence consultants to be very competent and flexible in implementing our special project requirements," said Lutz Höhn, Logistics Manager Denios AG, to explain why the company has chosen itelligence again.
